Hillyer paused. His hands were folded one in the other, and both were quivering. George Buckley was staring at him with bewildered fixity, his long, slender hand stayed in his heavy hair.

"I'm sorter scared at the sound o' my own voice," said Hillyer. "It's like somebody else was a-tellin' about it. I hain't even whispered it to myself. An' in all my prayers in regard to it I never have spoke his name or the name o' the crime. I always said, 'You know what I mean, Lord. Show me how to unload it.' Well"—Hillyer swallowed—"he fell dead in his tracks. I was sober in a second. I heard Williams a-comin', an' when he seed me an' the smokin' pistol an' my deed he give a little cry an' started to break an' run, but I th'owed the revolver down, an' called to 'im an' begged 'im not to leave. Then I stood in a hoist stall while he went an' examined—the body. I couldn't tetch it. Then he come back to me an' told me Lynn Hambricht was a corpse. That was a pile o' dirty hay in the stall, an' I remember I jest fell on it, face down, an' begun to cry an' beg the Lord to save me.

"Williams had a heart like a child's. He stood there an' watched an' listened to my ravishin' of fear an' regret till all at once he begun tryin' to pacify me. He told me I'd come clear; that it was in self defense; that he had seed it all an' would go on the stand an' testify in my behalf. I know now—in fact, I knowed when I heard him on the stand—that he was lyin' to save my neck, but I wanted to escape the penalty an' couldn't 'a' stopp'd 'im. The fear o' meetin' my God was awful. I wasn't even jailed. It was in unsettled times jest after the war. My folks was prominent, an' public sympathy fer me, young as I was, was high. The hardest thing of all to bear was the grief of Hambricht's mother. It looked like it ud mighty nigh kill 'er. He was her youngest an' pet. Her other boys never amounted to anything an' had gone west an' left 'er. Finally I come clear in the eyes o' the world, but, as God knows, not in my own. That crime is before me, wakin' or sleepin'. I often dream that I never done it, an' daylight gives that the lie. Seemed like ever'thing I went into turned out money, an' I prospered, though I did all I could to alleviate sufferin' an' help the different churches. Mrs. Hambricht jest had a little farm over in the mountains that turned out a bare livin', an' I sent a friend to 'er to offer her help, but she indignantly refused it. She'd come in town once in awhile, but she'd never come nigh whar I was at. Then I heard she was tryin' to git a pension through congress. Her husband had claimed to be a Union man, an' that he was forced into the Confederate ranks, whar he fit an' was killed, an' somebody told 'er she was entitled to a pension. Old Trubue tuck up the claim an' writ on about it to Washington, an' one day he happened to tell me that he had had a final decision an' that she couldn't git it an' that he hated to have to tell 'er the outcome. Then I got him to pretend to her that the pension was allowed, an' I paid the $10 a month. I've been doin' it fer twenty year now, an' it has kept 'er from sufferin', but I'm in mortal dread o' her findin' out whar the money comes from an' sellin' her place to repay it. She's still in good health over thar in the mountains.

About once a year, generally in the fall, she comes in town, but she shirks meetin' me. Somehow I always breathe freer when she's gone out o' town. The sight of 'er fetches it all back wuss than anything else. I've tried to find out what she thinks about it now, but she never mentions the subject to a soul. I've suffered the torments of the damned. I made a public confession in meetin', as well as I could, to show my contrition without implicatin' Hank Williams, but it didn't do a speck o' good. All the members swarmed round me and patted me on the back an' said I was nigh the throne, but the'r pats jest seemed to beat my guilt deeper in. I was afraid o' the slightest sound at night or my shadow in daylight an' was always countin' on bein' tuck off by disease. One mornin', in shavin', I noticed a little red spot on my cheek an' tuck it fer a cancer. I was shore then that the Lord intended to make me die a slow, loathsome death, an' all at once I felt weak at the knees an' couldn't hardly stand. My wife come an' found me. I didn't tell her about my cancer, an' she thought I was jest sick from somethin' I'd eat, an' when the doctor come I was afraid to tell 'im about the sore place. He left some medicine, an' I made out like I tuck it, but I th'owed it away. After that I'd make a point to stop an' talk to 'im every day to see ef he'd notice my face an' speak of it, but he didn't. I've started up to his office fifty times an' backed out, jest bec'ase I couldn't bear to be told that it was a cancer. Howsomer, one day, when it was more inflamed than ever, I went to his office—as weak as a sick kitten, feelin' jest like a man goin' to the scaffold. I went in an' set down an' waited fer 'im to git through with somebody else, an' when he turned to me I said, "Doc, I want you to take a look at my face." He put on his specks an' examined it; then he laughed an' said: "I'll bet a dollar you thought it was a cancer. Folks nowadays is more anxious to raise cancers 'an they are good taters." "But ain't it?" I axed 'im. "No," said he, "it hain't nothin' o' the sort. Ef you'll quit rubbin' it every minute in the day an' stop thinkin' about it, it'll go away in a week." I felt as light as a feather when I left him, but it wasn't twenty-four hours 'fore I had some other ailment.

"I was always lookin' fer the Lord to show designs agin me. Fer one thing, no children come to me 'n' Martha, an' I interpreted that as meanin' that, since I'd put life out o' the world, I shouldn't fetch it in. Most married folks worry when they hain't got some offsprin, but it worried me powerful. I never seed a happy child or a proud mother an' father without feelin' the Lord's rebuke. Oh, George, George, I've led the most awful life that was ever led by a human bein', it seems to me—an' I kept it all to myself, smilin' along with the rest, an' tryin' to find some loophole of escape. Now here's whar you come in, an' you'll think it odd, but I've started in to explain in full, an' I'm goin' to do it. You know I used to pass yore pa's place pretty often, goin' to my river mill an' farm, an' at the mill I frequently seed you comin' on that swaybacked old mare, a-straddle of yore bag o' shelled corn, barefooted even in winter, with yore hands an' feet cracked about how bad it was common report about how bad you was treated by yore daddy an' what a awful character he had. Maybe you remember the talk me 'n' you had, an' how you told me how anxious you was to git schoolin' an' books. That was the fust day after my crime that I got a beam of spiritual light. It come all over me like a flash that ef I could take you out'n yore degradation an' raise you to a respectable, useful place in life I could atone in part for what I'd done. Do you remember that day, George?"

He came upon Buckley lying on his side.

George Buckley started, raised his eyes from the floor in a sharp stare at the haggard face before him and said: "Yes, sir, I remember that day." "Well, sir, I couldn't git away from the idea. As I say, it was the fust bit of light I'd had. The following winter you remember my proposal. Somehow I was even then afraid you'd refuse, but you went off to school. An' then the weight and bitterness of my heart seemed to lessen, for every report I had was glorious. You stood head; you made the best speeches; you had the most friends among teachers an' pupils. Oh, George, George, you don't know what it meant to me; you seemed to be totin' me out of a rushin' river—a river rushin' toward hell! Then you know about the job I give you here after you graduated; every dollar you laid up a' properly invested was proof to me that God had heard my long prayer an' was answerin' it in his own way. I was puttin' into life a man fer one I had tuck out. Only one hitch occurred, an' that was when they threatened yore pa with arrest fer pennin' up them hogs. Then you got desperate an' started in to drinkin'. But we squashed that, an' it went on smooth agin till this—this late matter. And now—oh, George, I'm afraid—I'm afraid the Lord or the devil, or both combined, have been lendin' me through all this road o' promise jest in order to let me fall the harder. I've come here tonight to pray to you—yes to you—to save me. If you go down, I do too. Now you see what it all means an' what it means to me. I'm in yore hands, my boy. As God's agent, you hold me in the palm o' yore hand."

The old man's voice broke. He made an effort to say something more, but choked up, and with his gaze on the ragged rug in front of him, he sat quite motionless except for his heaving shoulders. George Buckley bent forward, his hands tightly clasping each other. Without a word he rose and went with a steady step out into the darkness of the warehouse. Hillyer heard his crunching tread as he walked back and forth over the grain strewn floor, and he knelt beside the bed and tried to pray the prayer that had rung in his old brain for thirty years, but somehow the worn words refused to come. George Buckley's silence was against him. His long delayed doom lurked in the dark silence of the great house, and in a moment George Buckley would calmly bring it forth and show it to him. Suddenly from the darkness he heard a stifled cry as of pain; then a heavy weight went down—George Buckley had fallen. A cold sweat broke out on the merchant's face. He feared he knew not what, but he feared. Was his doom about to show itself in a more tragic shape than he had ever dreamed of its taking? He stood up and slowly crept rather than walked to the door of the room. Standing there, he found his voice and cried out: "George, are you hurt?"

His voice rang harshly through the big room. There was no answer. "George! George! Are you thar?" Still no response.

Hillyer leaned against the door facing. His knees were weak; he was about to sink to the floor. Then he heard George Buckley calling to him. "Mr. Hillyer," came in a faint voice, "please bring the lamp back here!"

The lamp! Great God, what could that mean? What did Buckley intend to show him—what? Taking the lamp in his quivering hand, the merchant went back in the rear. At first he could see nothing, for he was dazed by the light, but he groped on. Presently he came upon Buckley lying on his side behind a great pile of corn in bags.

"I'm sorry to bother you," the young man said humbly, "but I've got my foot caught in a hole in the floor, and I can't possibly get it out."

"Oh, George!" the merchant gasped, and, placing the lamp on the floor, he raised the young man in his arms, and together they managed to release the imprisoned member.

"Thank you, Mr. Hillyer." The arm of the young man still lay on the old man's shoulder, and instead of removing it he pressed it down tenderly.

"I want to say something," he said, "but I'm afraid I can't. Mr. Hillyer, you have made a man of me tonight. You've taught me a great lesson. You met your trouble as early in life as I am meeting mine, and yet you have borne yours like a soldier for thirty years. I've been a coward, weak and shirking, but from tonight on I'm going to fight as you have done. You've saved me, Mr. Hillyer." Buckley turned the old man's face toward him.

"You know I never had a father I could love and respect, but I love and venerate you, sir. You can count on me, Mr. Hillyer. I was drunk when I spoke as I did just now. I'm sober now. I hope you will pardon me."

"Oh, George!" That was all the old man could say; he had begun to sob like a child.

Buckley took up the lamp. "Yes," he said as he led the way back to his room, "I'm all right now, Mr. Hillyer. An hour ago I had nothing to encourage me to keep on, but you have set me on my feet. Your long trouble has made a good man of you; perhaps Providence intends to give me the same sort of chance. If that's the plan, I'll accept the terms, for I'd go through it all to be as good as you are, even when my grave is white and I stoop over the head. What you did in blind, youthful passion was nothing—noting! My actions tonight on account of what I cannot help were simply insanity."

INTERESTING PROBABILITY

President Diaz Says He May Visit Us in the Winter.

Mexico City, Aug. 1.—Thomas N. McCauley, a New York financier, has been presented to President Diaz and Vice President-elect Corral by American Ambassador Clayton. In the course of a long interview President Diaz spoke of Mexico's desire to encourage the investment of American capital. Mr. McCauley expressed the opinion that if President Diaz would visit the United States it would greatly increase American interest in Mexico. In response President Diaz said that he may visit the United States during the coming winter. This remark is taken to mean that General Diaz intends to take a relief from executive duties soon after the installation of Senor Corral in the vice presidency.

LOOKS LIKE MURDER

Finding of Young Man's Body Creates Grave Suspicions.

Wheeling, W. Va., Aug. 1.—The body of Joseph Lamar, Jr., of Pittsburgh was found Sunday afternoon in an advanced state of decomposition in a clump of willows on the river shore near the heart of the city. When the body was lifted a knife with a three-inch blade fell from the inside of the shirt, and an examination showed that it had been plunged through the heart. Lamar left his home in Pittsburgh ten days ago after a quarrel, declaring that he would return a corpse. It is not believed that he committed suicide, however, as his over and under-shirts were carefully buttoned and were not cut. Physicians say he would not have had the strength to do this after plunging the knife into his heart.

A Murderer's Suicide.

Chicago, Aug. 1.—After a week of mental anguish, during which he continually wept and prayed, Frank Benedetto, who murdered his wife during a fit of jealousy, committed suicide in his cell in the county jail yesterday by hanging himself. The murderer made a rope of the sheet on his bed, tied one end around his neck and the other to the highest available point in the darkest corner of his cell. Then he lifted his feet from the floor and slowly strangled to death.

Government's Drastic Action.

Helsingfors, Finland, Aug. 1.—The father of Eugene Schumann, the assassin of General Bobrikoff, governor-general of Finland, has been sent to St. Petersburg under an escort of gendarmes. Prof. Gummerus of the University of Finland, has been exiled to Russia, being the fourth professor from this institution to be exiled since the murder of General Bobrikoff.

IN A TIGHT PLACE

Gen. Kuropatkin in a Situation Where He Must Fight or Run.

LINES ARE NARROWING

Three Japanese Armies Are Said to Be Converging on the Russian Main Army.

It is Reported That the Dreaded Vladivostok Fleet Has Returned to Harbor.

Tokio, Aug. 1.—It is reported here that the Vladivostok squadron has returned to Vladivostok.

St. Petersburg, Aug. 1.—Although public attention has been distracted from the events of the war during the past week, first because of the fear of international complications, and second, because of the assassination of Minister of the Interior Von Plehve, the situation at the front is regarded as critical.

The enveloping movement of three Japanese armies of Generals Kuroki, Nodzu and Oku around General Kuropatkin's position appears to be almost complete, and the extended line of the Japanese seems to be the only drawback to concerted action. It is realized here that the Russian general must now either fight or withdraw the whole army northward. He is being closely pressed at Hai Cheng. At that place General Kuroki's northern column makes it extremely dangerous to remain there, because, while holding the position to give battle against the Japanese, whose advance is notoriously always slow and careful, General Kuroki might push through and cut his railway communications to Liao Yang.

While nothing is definitely known, there are some unofficial indications that matters are rapidly maturing for either a battle or a retreat. For instance, the refusal to accept further press telegrams at Hai Cheng is shown by the fact that one of the correspondents had to ride through to Mukden to file an account of the Tatch Kiao fight. This might be construed either that preparations are making for a retirement or that the wires are very crowded, incident to a concentration at Hai Cheng or Liao Yang. A few days are expected to determine which course General Kuropatkin has elected to pursue.

There is no inclination here to doubt that there may have been pretty severe fighting at the outer positions of Port Arthur, possibly accompanied by a bombardment from the sea, but it is not believed that the Japanese are yet ready to storm the fortress. Rear Admiral Witthoft, in command of the naval forces at Port Arthur, is relied on to put to sea if the condition of the fortress becomes desperate. While no definite information is obtainable, the report that the fortress is short of ammunition is considered by the public as the most disquieting feature of the situation here.

The Vladivostok squadron is expected back in port today or tomorrow. The indications are that the Baltic squadron is on the eve of an important movement. Nothing regarding this can be ascertained officially, but many of the officers already have said farewell to friends and families and are holding themselves ready for instant service. The emperor had arranged to inspect the squadron, but his plan was given up owing to the assassination of Minister Von Plehve.

News Hadn't Reached Them.

Tokio, Aug. 1.—The reply of the Port Arthur garrison to the Japanese summons to surrender has been published. This reply shows that the garrison is under the impression that Field Marshal Oyama and all his staff were sunk with the transports Hitachi and Sado and that the Russians wholly disbelieve that General Kuropatkin has ever been defeated.

General Sakharoff Reports.

St. Petersburg, Aug. 1.—Lieutenant General Sakharoff, in a dispatch to the general staff dated July 30, reports that "There has been no change in the front of the Manchurian army up to midday today. The Japanese are concentrating strongly on our southern front."

Heavy Fighting Continues.

New Chwang, Aug. 1.—There has been heavy fighting for two days in the marshes south of Haicheng during the gradual retreat from Tatche Kiao of 5,000 Russians forming the rear guard. The peril of this force increases daily.

Treaty Wasn't Violated.

Constantinople, Aug. 1.—The government denies the rumor that permission has been granted the Russian mine-ship Diana to pass the Dardanelles.

All Quiet at Liao Yang.

Liao Yang, Aug. 1.—All is quiet on both the south and east fronts and nothing important is anticipated short of five days.

Going by Northern Route.

Copenhagen, Aug. 1.—Two Russian cruisers and two torpedo boats have traversed the Great Belt, going northward.

INTERESTING DOCUMENT

Will Be Senator Fairbanks' Address to Notification Committee.

Indianapolis, Aug. 1.—Senator Chas. Warren Fairbanks arrived here today from Mackinac Island, where he has leased a cottage for the summer. He has been there preparing his speech for the notification Wednesday. He has given a great deal of attention to it, and it is expected to prove one of the interesting documents of the campaign. He is looking much better than he did some time ago, and before the campaign opens he expects to be in tip-top physical condition. The senator will be notified on the lawn at his beautiful North Meridian street home. The exercises will be similar to the notification of President Roosevelt last week. Senator Fairbanks desires that there shall be no attempt at a big display or demonstration. It is probable that the exercises will not last over two hours. He will probably give a luncheon in honor of the members of the committee.

Thomas Taggart is again on Indiana soil, but he won't be here before tomorrow night. He is now at French Lick getting a brief rest after his hard session at New York. He was warmly received by the Democrats of Orange and neighboring counties, who were as anxious to show him honor as the Democrats here. Taggart is a hard worker, and it is not likely that he will take much rest until the campaign is over. He is constantly up and doing. In fact, his associates here say that he owes much of his success to his way of doing things while other people wait. Taggart will probably come to Indianapolis by the way of Louisville over the J. M. & I. He could reach here much quicker from French Lick by a more direct route, but the committees in charge of the arrangements for the reception don't want him to get in until they are ready to meet him with the host of party workers who are going to turn out and escort him to Tomlinson hall. The line of march will be from the Union station north on Illinois street to Washington, east on Washington to New Jersey, countermarching thence to Meridian, north in Meridian to the Circle, around the west side of the Circle to Market, and thence east to Tomlinson hall.

This will be the big week politically here. The program outlined now consists of the reception for Taggart tomorrow night, the Democratic state convention Wednesday, the notification of Senator Fairbanks Wednesday of his nomination for vice president, and the meeting of the two state committees Wednesday. In addition there will be many little but important conferences of which the public will not know anything at the time. Altogether the program is one that will make Indianapolis a political center of great magnitude. It is very probable that between 5,000 and 6,000 party workers from Indiana will come here to get a line on the doings, but the week will be notable for the presence of such men as Elihu T. Root, who will make the speech notifying Senator Fairbanks, and Senator Bailey and ex-Senator Towne, who will speak at the Taggart reception. It is not unlikely that John Sharp Williams, the Democratic leader in congress, Bourke Cochran and two or three other prominent men may drop in for the big performance.

Samuel M. Ralston of Lebanon stated positively today that his name will not be presented before the Democratic convention Wednesday for nomination for governor. He is in no sense a candidate and he declared that Kern will be the nominee. When asked if he would refuse the nomination if it were tendered unanimously, he said that was putting it a little too strong, which goes to show that he would not refuse if there was a unanimous call. The same thing may be said of Kern. Recently he was on the point of stating to the public that he would not accept. He says now that he is not a candidate, which is undoubtedly true, but Kern is a man who dotes on his loyalty to the party, and if he is again called to the lead the fight there is not much doubt that he will accept and go to the front with all the strength, enthusiasm and ability of which he is possessed. It seemed to be the general impression today that the ticket will be Kern for governor and Frank Herring of South Bend for lieutenant governor.

Settled in Primaries.

Houston, Tex., Aug. 1.—The city is rapidly filling with delegates to the Democratic state convention, which will begin Tuesday. There is only one possible contest on the ticket, the other candidates having been selected in the primaries. It is stated that W. C. Wear of Hillsboro will draw out, and if he does the nomination of S. V. Davidson of Galveston for attorney general is assured. There is a contest on for chairman of the state executive committee that is stirring up matters.

May Lead to Open Shop.

New York, Aug. 1.—It is said here that if the members of the unions who are held responsible for the strike in the subway do not adjust matters promptly a general lockout may be ordered by the Building Trades Employers' association, to be followed by an attempt to establish an open shop.

Earthquake Shocks Felt.

Woodland, Cal., Aug. 1.—Several distinct shocks of earthquake were felt here. They were heavy enough to awaken people. No damage was done.

Possible Mob Outwitted.

Savannah, Ga., Aug. 1.—Will Cato and Paul Reed, negroes suspected of the murder and burning of the Hodge family near Statesboro, have been brought here for safe keeping.

BOTH SIDES FIRM

Packers and Strikers Show No Signs of Weakening [in Big Fight.]

PATCHING UP DEFENSES

Evidences of Preparation For a Long Contest Are Apparent in Present Mode of Procedure.

Strike Breakers Rushing to the Scene Give Packers a Little Breathing Spell.

Chicago, Aug. 1.—Both the packers and the strikers spent Sunday in strengthening any weak spots that could be found in their defenses preparatory to another week of effort to bring their opponents to terms. Notwithstanding that it was Sunday, all the plants were operated during the forenoon in order to get rid of the livestock that had been left over from last week. The remainder of the day was spent by the employers in installing new men in the strikers' places and arranging many of the small details which had been overlooked last week during the heat of the conflict. Over 1,000 new men were added during the day to the number already at work in the different plants. Among these arrivals were many skilled laborers, something the packers have been sadly in need of ever since the strike started. The employers have experienced little difficulty in procuring all the unskilled men necessary to operate the plants to their full capacity, but there has been a decided scarcity of skilled workmen, and for this reason the by-products of all animals killed have been let go to waste. Commencing today three of the firms announce that they are able to operate these divisions, enough skilled men having been procured in the past forty-eight hours to justify the belief that all the by-product plants will be in full operation by the end of the week.

The strike leaders have prepared a statement to the public. In this statement the unionists explain their side of the controversy, declaring that it is the packers and not the men who are responsible for the present state of affairs in the packing industry. The public is asked to be patient with the men during the struggle for supremacy, it being declared by the union leaders that it would be impossible for the men to return to work under the conditions which existed before the strike was called, and that up to the present the packers have shown no disposition to treat the strikers in a fair manner. According to this statement the men will stay on strike until their unions are disrupted or until the packers surrender.

The Allied Trades Council met Sunday afternoon between Andrew Simms and John Davis, both non-union workmen from New Albany, Ind., the former was stabbed and killed. Simms was employed by the packing company as a waiter in the improvised dining room which has been fitted up for the men employed as strike breakers. Davis was employed as a cook by the same concern. While eating dinner they became involved in a quarrel over the food. In the fight that followed Davis was getting decidedly the worst of it and, drawing a knife, stabbed Simms three times. Simms died in the hospital two hours later and Davis was arrested.

In a fight at the Nelson Morris plant Sunday afternoon between Andrew Simms and John Davis, both non-union workmen from New Albany, Ind., the former was stabbed and killed. Simms was employed by the packing company as a waiter in the improvised dining room which has been fitted up for the men employed as strike breakers. Davis was employed as a cook by the same concern. While eating dinner they became involved in a quarrel over the food. In the fight that followed Davis was getting decidedly the worst of it and, drawing a knife, stabbed Simms three times. Simms died in the hospital two hours later and Davis was arrested.

President Donnelly Talks.

Omaha, Neb., Aug. 1.—President Michael Donnelly of the Amalgamated Meat Cutters and Butchers' Union, who arrived in the city early Sunday, addressed two meetings of the packing-house strikers, one at Labor Temple in Omaha and the other at a hall in South Omaha. At each meeting he was greeted by an immense crowd, who gave him most respectful attention and grew enthusiastic as their leader reached climaxes. President Donnelly said that the strikers would win in Chicago, the statement of the packers to the contrary notwithstanding. The keynote of Donnelly's address was that the strike was on for a finish, and said that it would either be won or the union would be broken.

Insurance Company Withdraws.

Louisville, Ky., Aug. 1.—The Illinois Life Insurance company has withdrawn from Kentucky. The step was taken voluntarily, following a demand made by State Insurance Commissioner Henry R. Prewitt for permission to inspect the company's books. The demand was refused. A large number of policy holders are affected by the company's action, which leaves them without the protection of the insurance laws of the state in which they reside. The number of policy holders affected is estimated at nearly 100,000.

Possible Mob Outwitted.

Savannah, Ga., Aug. 1.—Will Cato and Paul Reed, negroes suspected of the murder and burning of the Hodge family near Statesboro, have been brought here for safe keeping.

JOHN KERN says the home town of Judge Parker is pronounced E-soap-us, a sort of "soft-soap-us" as it were.

It will go a little hard with many free silver democrats to vote for Henry G. Davis for vice president, because he supported Palmer and Buckner—Charlestown Citizen (Dem.)

The Benton Harbor Times and the Charlotte Tribune, two of the leading democratic papers of Michigan have bolted Parker and Davis and come out for the republican ticket.

MUCH has been said by Democratic leaders about Judge Parker's courage. It is not courage, but cheek. Think of a candidate for the presidency saying: "I know that our party has always been wrong, and the Republicans always been right, but we should be given control." According to the foolish view that is just common cheek.

TOM TAGGART says that his French Lick hotel is in no way connected with the gambling that is carried on there constantly. Of course not, Tom is just down there keeping boarders. The income of $5000 per month paid for the gambling privileges is doubtless turned over to charity organizations.

IT NOW appears that the Taggart Democrats are preparing to control nominations at the coming State convention, and one thing is certainly settled, and that is that no man who was really loyal to Bryan and what he stood for in 1896 and 1900 will be nominated for governor. On every hand we hear the remark from the re-organizers that Judge Dillon of Petersburg and N. J. Bozarth, of Valparaiso, "will not do." While the Parker crowd has not agreed on a man, it is generally suspected that John Kern is to be the man. At any rate the rank and file of the party will have little to say.

WRECK ON THE BRANCH.

Big Four Freight Cars Piled up Near Lexington.

Early Monday morning a Big Four freight train was wrecked on the Louisville branch of the B. & O. S-W. near Lexington. Ten or a dozen cars were piled up promiscuously, blocking the main line several hours. The wrecking crew was called from here, likewise a similar Big Four crew was called to clear the track.

The cause of the trouble is said to have been the breaking of the trucks on one of the cars. No one was hurt so far as reported.

All the forenoon passenger trains over the branch were sent by way of Seymour and the Pennsylvania line.

Merchants' Position.

The retail Merchants and Grocers Associations having taken up the gauntlet thrown down by the Home Telephone Company, (composed of Chicago capitalists) in regard to rates take this means of submitting their position to the public, hoping thereby to show that we have been more than fair with them in fact if absolute justice were done the rate would be still lower. No one will dispute the fact that the citizens of any community are entitled to the use of public utilities at the lowest price consistent with good service, cost of production and a liberal profit on the investment. We hold the obligations of the public to any company ceases when we allow them a liberal profit on the first cost of plant, to do more than this, is to do an injustice to the public. That we have allowed them a fair and liberal profit on cost of plant let following statements attest. IN NO ONE of the following towns is the rate higher than that offered by us, some considerable lower. Franklin, Columbus, North Vernon, Brownstown, Orleans, Bloomington, (Seymour Company owners the last name plant.)

The income of this plant exclusive of tolls is approximately $500 per month. We have attempted to approximate the expense, and by no possible stretch of imagination can we get it above $250 per month and we believe $200 is nearer the correct figure, but admitting the former for present purposes, this would give them a net 12 per cent on an investment of $25,000, not withstanding that they have sold $40,000 worth of 6 per cent bonds and half as much more common stock. We have reason to believe that the plant could be reproduced for a much less price than figure named ($25,000). This and other information in our possession, we feel warrants the stand we have taken and as an evidence of the faith that is in us we assure the patrons of the Phone Company we can and will secure this or a lower rate for you, if you will but give us your undivided support; if not from this company than elsewhere.

FAREWELL SERMON.

Rev. W. C. Martin Closes His Pastorate Here.

Rev. W. C. Martin, who goes to Bluffton the latter part of this week to begin his work as pastor of the Baptist church in that city, preached his farewell sermon here Sunday night in the presence of a large congregation. The Presbyterian church joined with the Baptists in this meeting and Dr. E. C. Jacka assisted in the services. Mr. Martin has been pastor of the First Baptist church here for two years and a half and during that time he has made a host of friends who regret his removal from this city. He is an able and scholarly preacher and an genial gentleman. He has done a good work here and his family will be kindly remembered by Seymour people. After his sermon last night he baptized three persons who recently united with the church. Mr. Martin's sermon was thoroughly appropriate to the occasion and was listened to attentively by the large audience.

The text was taken from 2 Cor. 3:11—"Finally, Brethren, Farewell."

He said in part: "To efface himself is one of the preacher's first duties. He should be simply 'a voice crying,' like John, the Baptist. The voice is unimportant, except that it be clear and strong. The message is all important. Yet rarely come occasions when the preacher may speak of himself. This is such an occasion and to say nothing personal would be affectation. I have aimed during these years to preach the Word. You have long ago learned how little sympathy I have with those who pick flaws in the Bible. To me it is the Word of God—all of it. With as simple a faith as my little girl I accept the story of Eden, of the sun and moon standing still, of Jonah and the whale, of the raising of Lazarus, and all the other questioned passages of Holy Writ. Not that I understand it all for we cannot measure the heavens with a foot rule nor enclose the things of omnipotence in a human skull.

And I have tried to preach the Word of God as the very Word of God with simplicity and freshness—to be a voice, simply a voice, proclaiming in ever new and varied forms the old gospel.

I have aimed to live a clean life. For I know that the world looks at ministers out of the pulpit to know what they mean when in it.

I have aimed to promote harmony. This is the most important and distinctive of all graces. Christ's new commandment the sum of all the law and the prophets is "that ye love one another."

There is so much discord everywhere else. Nations look with suspicion on each other. Their very emblems are warlike. America claiming to love peace chooses the fierce eagle, England the merciless lion, Russia the growling bear and other nations equally as warlike national symbols. Discord is everywhere. The melodies of nature are disturbed by the huntsman's gun and the carnivorous creature's predations. All business and politics and social affairs are filled with strife. The church should be among them all, a place of harmony and love and peace. And from the beginning I have kept saying: 'Let brotherly love continue.'

Memories come trooping up as farewells are spoken. Memories of the kindly word, the cheer and encouragement, the precious gifts of the hospitable home, the shadows of grief, the wedding bells, the sick chamber, the conversions of this and that one, the baptism—oh, very precious is this golden string of pearls about the pastor's heart. He is brother to the mariner who in life's evening finds his joy in recalling the ships he has sailed in and the men he has sailed with. The minister's fellow sailors never die. They may pass from his sight and he from theirs, but "old acquaintance" is not forgot.

And my farewell wishes? An old expression often heard sums them up. I have heard many with tears in their eyes and a quaver in the voice say, "Good bye, be good to yourself." And the rest of this verse tells how. "Be perfect, be of good comfort." All religions have their ideals of perfection but by torture and suffering. Our's has an ideal as high as heaven and yet while God's righteousness says "Be perfect," His love says "Be of good comfort."

"Be of one mind; live in peace." "If it be possible so much as lieth in you, live peaceably with all men." It may not always be possible, but see that the fault does not lie in you.

The world is full of farewells. "Meeting and parting in this world must ever be,

Meeting and parting on life's mystic sea."

and these partings are always attended with pain. The son leaves home for life. Father tries to be calm but blows his nose dreadfully, and mother weeps and clings to him. A husband leaves home to seek fortune with an ache in his heart and a greater ache is in the faithful little wife's heart. And the long farewells at the bedside when the King's messenger says to some member of the family "child, come home." And there is the pastor's parting after the most precious and tender ties have been formed.

"To, know, to esteem, to love—and then to part Makes up life's tale to many a feeling heart!"

GOOD BYE.

"Why do we say it when the tears are starting?
Why must a word so sweet bring only pain?
Our love seems all-sufficient till the parting:
And there we feel it impatient and vain.
May God be with you."

Oh, may He guide and bless and keep you ever.

He who is strong to battle with your foes:
Whoever fails, His love can fall you never,
And all you need, He in His wisdom knows.
May God be with you."

Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. Sought Refuge in Swamp.

Portage, Pa., Aug. 1.—Pursued by 800 men, the three men who murdered Charles Hays, driver, and perhaps fatally wounded Patrick F. Campbell, paymaster, of the Puritan Coal company, about a mile south of this place Saturday, are hiding in Cedar swamp, about seven miles from Portage on the Bedford county line. One of the fugitives is injured, but not so as to prevent his flight. In parties of about twenty the pursuing men are scattered over the entire boundary of the laurel thicket and swamp, which is twelve miles long and seven miles wide.

An Inkling of Trouble.

Washington, Aug. 1.—Just a remote inkling of the possibility of an upheaval which rumor says has occurred in Bogota reached here through official channels some time ago. This was to the effect that the anti-Reyes element in the lower house of the Colombian congress was dissatisfied with the way in which things were going and gave evidence of strong opposition to him for the presidency. The Colombian congress is supposed to have met in Bogota on the 20th inst.

A Million or More of Deaf Mutes.
Recent estimation places the number of deaf mutes in the world at more than 1,000,000. This great number of human beings, living a life which a normal person cannot conceive, is destined to increase because of the tendency of these people to marry persons laboring under the same disability.

Examination of the records of 4,500 marriages of deaf persons shows 9 per cent of the children to be deaf, while only one-tenth of 1 per cent of the offspring of an equal number of marriages of normal persons are likely to be afflicted with deafness. Deaf parents whose relatives are not deaf run no greater chances of having deaf children than persons who can hear, but in the case of normal persons in whose families there are members who are deaf the danger of deaf children is, according to Professor E. A. Fay, who has studied the question, just as great as among deaf people.—New York Press.

She says Electric Bitters are just splendid for female troubles; that they are a grand tonic and invigorator for weak, run down women. No other medicine can take its place in our family." Try them. TELEPHONE TROUBLES.

About 150 'Phones Went out of Service Today.

As a result of the controversy with the local telephone company over rates no fewer than 150 telephones in the city went out of service this morning. Notices ordering most of these phones out were served on the Company Saturday night. Every grocery store, every meat market, every livery stable and many other places of business, every physician's office and numerous residences discontinued the use of telephones today and employees of the company have been busy removing instruments ordered out. The "telephone situation" is the subject of conversation on the streets, in the stores and offices generally.

Each side to the controversy seems as determined as ever, therefore the signs for an adjustment of differences in the immediate future do not look very bright. To "stand pat" seems to be the policy all around. Nevertheless there are some who yet have faith in the ability of the parties to the controversy to yet reach a satisfactory and equitable basis of settlement.

In view of the fact that every telephone subscriber, past and present, is studying rates and that some have already been published, the REPUBLICAN submits the following for the sake of further comparison:

SHELBYVILLE.—Business phone $2.00; residence phone $1.00. County service.

FRANKLIN.—Business phone $2.00; residence phone $1.00. County service.

MADISON.—Business phone $2.00; residence phone $1.50; business and residence to same party $3.00. County service.

NORTH VERNON.—Business phone $2.00; residence $1.00; business and residence phones to same party $2.75. Services limited to Vernon and North Vernon.

COLUMBUS.—Here the rates are being readjusted. All subscribers whose phones were installed prior to January 1, 1904, are paying $2.00 for business and $1.00 for residences, but the subscribers are expecting the rate on the resident phone to be raised by the first of next year. In Columbus the telephone company is installing a number of "two party lines" charging each of the two subscribers on this line $1.00 for his phone. New independent resident phones put in now would cost $1.50 per month. Under the readjustment the business rate of $2.00 will remain the same.

The rates that the Seymour company is asked to make to subscribers, $2.00 for business and $1.00 for residence phones, do not differ materially from an average of the rates charged in the five cities named above.

CHRONIC SORES

Signs of Polluted Blood.

There is nothing so repulsive looking and disgusting as an old sore. You worry over it till the brain grows weary and work with it until the patience is exhausted, and the very sight of the old festering, sickly looking place makes you irritable, despondent and desperate.

A chronic sore is the very best evidence that your constitution is breaking down under the effects of some serious disorder. The taking of strong medicines, like mercury or potash, will sometimes so pollute and vitiate the blood and impair the general system that the merest scratch or bruise results in obstinate non-healing sores of the most offensive character.

Often an inherited taint breaks out in frightful eating sores upon the limbs or face in old age or middle life. Whenever a sore refuses to heal the blood is always at fault, and, while antiseptic washes, salves, soaps and powders can do much to keep down the inflammation and cleanse the sore, it will never heal permanently till the blood itself has been purified and the deadly germs and poisons destroyed, and with S. S. S. this can be accomplished—the polluted blood is purified and invigorated, and when rich, pure blood is again circulating freely throughout the body the flesh around the old sore begins to take on a natural color, the discharge of matter ceases and the place heals over.

S. S. S. is both a blood purifier and tonic that puts your blood in order and at the same time tones up the system and builds up the general health. If you have a chronic sore write us. No charge for medical advice.

Church Rededicated.

Yesterday was a day of rejoicing for the German Evang. St. Paul's church. The members of this congregation were privileged to glorify God for the first time in their renovated house of worship, which has been closed for nearly two months on account of extensive repairs and changes. The reopening was celebrated in two services. Excellent sermons were delivered by Rev. G. Klenle and Rev. W. Mehl, and Rev. C. Severinghaus tendered the congratulations of this church in an appropriate address.
The musical program rendered during Rehuff of Indianapolis, who was the guest of Mr. A. Dickow and family.

Miss Geisler of Louisville, Ky., the guest of Mr. Henry Cordes and family, sang a solo in the evening service which with all other vocal music was members of St. Paul and their friends of the sister churches spent in the tabernacle of the Lord.

JULY WEATHER CONDITIONS.

Cool and Dry But Favorable to Crops.

July, 1904, was a phenomenal month, with a daily average temperature of 4 degrees below the normal, light rainfall and a very marked excess in sunshine—not a single day being cloudy.
The warmest day was the 19th, with a maximum temperature of 93 degrees, and the coolest was the 2nd, with a minimum of only 48 degrees. The greatest daily range was 31 degrees and the monthly temperature range was 45 degrees. Light electrical storms occurred on the 4th, 8th, 10th and 19th. The winds were southwesterly and light, the exception being a gale of considerable severity on the 19th. Rain fell on 8 days, 18 days were clear, 13 were partly cloudy and none were cloudy.

The total precipitation was 1.35 inches—about 2.5 inches below the normal, and the heaviest rainfall in 24 hours was 0.45 of an inch on the 12th. All vegetation grew and matured rapidly. Wheat was garnered, a fair yield of variable quality. Oats and hay harvests nearly complete.
All field and garden crops continued in very promising condition. Melon crop fair but late. Potatoes will be abundant. Peaches a failure but all other fruit promise fair to good yield.
General crops outlook good. Probably the corn prospect was never better at the season. Rain needed badly.
Temperature: Maximum, 93 degrees;
Minimum, 48 degrees and the monthly mean was 73.3 degrees above Zero.

JOHN AULD FORSYTHE, Observer Weather Bureau.

Jolly Party at Bells Ford.

Harmon Holtman took a party of young people to Bells Ford yesterday morning to spend the day, returning with them in the evening about 11 o'clock. The forenoon was spent in fishing during which time Miss Mayme Finke landed a large catfish weighing seven pounds which was cooked for supper, which with roast corn, and other enjoyable things the party made merry. Among those present were Mayme Finke, Henry Holtman, Cora
Love, Voss Cox, Eva Becker, Earl
Cox, Clara Grelle, Harmon Bosse,
Emma Willman and Carl Bruno.

Witness the Change Which Has Taken Place in Eight Months.

Prior to Nov. 1st, 1903, the people of this community, with the exception of a few who had availed themselves of a city specialist at city prices, knew nothing about the science of lens fitting and its benefits by the optometric system. You took that which was given you, oft times accepting lenses which caused great discomfort, pains in the eyes, eye strain headaches and other causes too numerous to mention. You frequently wore glasses according to instruction when your better judgment told you not to.
Today everybody who deals in lenses in Seymour is obliged to make good his work, because the six hundred satisfied patients, whom we have served, have so thoroughly advertised our methods that the old style of imposing on your scientific intelligence can be no longer employed.

It's the class of work that we have done, the science skill and knowledge applied, together with our introduction of an ironclad guarantee, that has brought the situation to this satisfactory basis for the public at large.
It means if you must buy lenses they must be worth the money. Compare the situation now and before. Who do you think is entitled to your lens work? MR. AND MRS. HARSCH, Optometrists.
